186. Matters Raised by Scrutiny

OSBP Call-in - Recommisioning of Building Based Day Services for Older Adults

The call-in agreed by the Overview & Scrutiny Business Panel was jointly presented by Councillors Juliet Campbell and John Muldoon.

Councillor Muldoon began by clarifying procedural and protocol issues which demonstrated that subsequent to the withdrawal of the Day Services item at the October 10 Mayor & Cabinet meeting it had been lawfully relisted for the November 20 meeting. Subsequently however it had appeared for determination at the October 30 meeting under the terms of an applicable urgency procedure which obviated the usual requirement of 28 days notice in the Key Decision Plan. Councillor Muldoon concluded that it was important for the effective exercise of the Scrutiny function to rely upon the Key Decision Plan and he asked that the decision should be deferred for a short time.

Councillor Campbell spoke about the importance of the Calabash Centre in reducing inequalities and she urged wider consultation with the Afro-Caribbean community in Lewisham. She recognised the Budget constraints within which the Council operated but concluded that such was the importance of the Centre to the Afro-Caribbean community that any dilution should be avoided pending a wider consultation to agree a way forward.

The Mayor exercised his discretion to allow two further speakers to speak in support of the call-in.
Firstly, Councillor Coral Howard recalled that she had already spoken at Mayor & Cabinet and at Business Panel but now wished to enter a plea for a wider perspective to be taken given the seemingly inexorable growth of the BAME population in Lewisham which she predicted would be the majority population by 2028. She asked that given the financial imperatives behind the proposals it would be prudent to wait until after the forthcoming General election when more funds might be available.

Secondly, Mr Arthur Torrington outlined the historic links of the Afro-Caribbean community to Britain which stretched back to 1609 and had continued until the present day with the Windrush generation. He concluded that a dedicated centre to the Afro-Caribbean community was a vital necessity.

The Deputy Mayor, Councillor Chris Best, responded to the call-in. She pointed out the majority of the users of the Calabash Centre would still be BAME residents and that the two centres which were being discontinued had BAME users. She confirmed there was no threat to any existing users of the Calabash Centre and that the revised EIA fully complied with the legal framework and that all required consultation had taken place. She asked the Cabinet to reconfirm its original decisions.

The Mayor thanked everyone who had made a contribution to the debate. He noted the agreed call-in text did not ask Cabinet to change its decision but rather asked for more time so that Scrutiny could examine additional submissions. After careful consideration the Mayor had concluded it was not in the interests of anyone for the uncertainty surrounding the day care service to continue any longer than absolutely necessary. The Mayor pointed out the unrelenting background of austerity in which the council was forced to operate and that it was not sustainable to fund 23 unused day care places every day. Centralising services in the Calabash Centre would improve the quality of care without impacting on any existing services. The Mayor recognised the deeply held feelings which had been expressed but stressed that the Council wished to retain the history and its ongoing commitment to the Afro-Caribbean community. He called for the continuation of honest dialogue and engagement with the Afro-Caribbean community. He proposed that a Service Users Group be created at the Calabash Centre and added that the Government had to be pressed to support culturally specific services.
